Dear Mothers, thank you!! Thank you for saying yes to the gift of life. Thank you for the sacrifices you make for us and for your generosity. And even if you are not a biological mother, thank you to all of the women who have a motherly role in our lives.

Motherhood is not just biological, but spiritual as well. Thank you to all of those who have nurtured the faith of others, passed along the life-giving Gospel of Jesus Christ. We thank you and we thank Mary, the Mother of God and our Mother for her intercession on our behalf.

The Gift of a Purpose

By: Daniel Oleson

In my lifetime, I have been greatly blessed by God. The number of gifts he has given me are innumerable, whether or not I have made good use of them. The process of choosing one of greatest significance has proved a difficult endeavor; however I believe I have found the one which takes precedence over all others: free will. I have earnestly considered others (Namely the great mercy God shows to us, or the sacrifice of Jesus), however our own free will is what allows us to do anything, and gives meaning to choosing the path of righteousness.

Although it may be simple and widely taken for granted, it may also be the main requirement for any purpose in our existence. Not only does free will give us a choice in every part of our lives, but any other gifts given to us presuppose this ability – otherwise we have no choice in the matter anyway and they are not truly gifts. It gives us the power to choose between good and evil every day of our earthly lives, and ultimately it gives us the choice of our final destination, Heaven or Hell. This must show the great respect God has for us. He loves us infinitely and wants us to be eternally united with him, but he does not force us.

Imagine living without the free will to make your own choices. No one would do anything other than their preprogrammed functions, and making it to heaven would have absolutely no significance. If we had not been given this gift, the way we interact, make decisions, and live would be completely automatic. We would be entirely instinctive creatures no greater than the animals. In essence, our free will is what makes us human.

In truth, by giving us free will God allows us to determine our own fate. What great power God has bestowed on us! We have ultimate control over our own choices, and even have the power to defy him, our creator and sustainer! He never forces us to do anything we don't want to do, even to obey his command. Although this great gift exposes us to great danger in this way, it also gives us a universal goal and purpose, while making the reward well worth the risk.

After careful consideration, I believe that free will is the greatest gift anyone has been given by God. Not only does it allow us to make little decisions in our earthly life, but the choices of greatest consequence to ourselves and others – including the fate of our soul! Without it we would be slaves to his will without a choice, and our obedience would mean nothing, nor would the achievement of reaching Heaven. Ultimately, the gift of free will is what gives us the ability to do anything – good or evil – and gives reason for us to exist at all. It also shows how great God's love must be for us, for he does not force anyone to do anything, but allows us to choose by our own intellect. I don't know if anyone can definitively prove that any one gift of God is the greatest of them all, but I do believe that the gift of free will lays the foundation for anything worthwhile or meaningful in this life or the next.
